This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INVESTMENT BONDS

ROBERT S. ROSS & CO.

56 PINE STREET
NEW YORK

Gentlemen:

We take pleasure in herewith outlining to you the nature of our policy and services.

We keep our clientele informed regarding the new attractive bond issues and we are constantly combing the market for investment bargains, i. e., bonds - the intrinsic value of which warrant their selling at higher prices.

We believe that the obligation of a Bond House today does not end with the sale of bonds to its customers, and we make it a point to observe tendencies, which might have an important bearing on our customers' investments.

Perhaps, at the present time, there is some particular issue on which you would like to have definite information. We would be pleased to send you a confidential analysis of it, whether you have purchased the securities through us or not.

There will be no charge for this service, nor will there be any obligation whatever, unless later you feel an obligation - not to us, but to yourself - to seek further business relations with a House that is making an unusual effort to be of the greatest possible and protection to investors.

May we hear from you?

Respectfully yours,

DFM

PREFACE

THERE is no longer any need for argument as to the utility or value of reference books of the "Who's Who" class. Beginning with the English volume, an annual which first appeared in 1849, books of this class have developed steadily increasing importance in the list of indispensable books for the reference shelf. The British "Who's Who," for the first fifty years practically confined its scope to biographical data relating to the nobility and landed gentry of the British Isles. Its scope was greatly enlarged and its usefulness increased under the enterprising editorship of Mr. Douglas Sladen, who brought into the British Who's Who fold men in many other branches of achievement and endeavor.

The present writer pioneered the "Who's Who" idea in this country, believing that the United States needed a reference book of that kind. He had been connected with newspapers and various publications as a writer and had found great difficulty in procuring adequate data of a biographical character. Beginning about 1890 he had endeavored to interest several publishers in his plans, but each of them regarded the project as one involving much labor with little prospect of profit. Finally one of them, in 1897, took it up and after two years' work the first American Who's Who appeared in 1899. I continued as its sole editor until 1906, when I entered upon other work. I had made it the standard reference book concerning American notables in all lines of useful endeavor, but at the same time realized that one volume, biennially revised, could never adequately cover the list of those who represent the vast activities and interests of the most progressive 100,000,000 group of people in the world. Later I edited "Who's Who" volumes relating to individual States, and wrote several volumes historical in character, but always had in contemplation a more complete filling of the National field. The State idea is a good one applied to the larger States, but impractical in many of the smaller ones, and even in the large commonwealths the volumes combine as does the National one, incongruous groups and present mere samples of each of the lines represented, the major part being taken up with public officials, politicians, educators, writers and stage folk; interesting and useful, as far as they go, but leaving a vast field uncovered.

I then formulated a plan to prepare several Who's Who volumes, each covering a homogeneous group of subjects, and arranged with the firm of Joseph & Sefton for the first of these, "Who's Who in Finance" which they published. It met with a generous reception, and a second issue was planned, but the disruption of financial conditions with the outbreak of the European War postponed the plan, and the death of Mr. Sefton, with other engagements of the editor, left the matter in abeyance until the incorporation of Who's Who in Finance, Incorporated, under the laws of New York, in 1920, as successor to the firm of Joseph & Sefton.

After this delay it became necessary to begin anew the work of collection and compilation of data. As the first volume was largely made up of the biographical statistics of bankers, it was decided to change the name of the book from "Who's Who in Finance" to "WHO'S WHO IN FINANCE AND BANKING."

It will be noticed that this volume differs, in size of page and format, from the old-established British "Who's Who" and the various National volumes, American, German, French, Australian, Canadian and Japanese, which adhere to the standard idea of squatness as essential to a "Who's Who." The pages are larger and the volume is better proportioned. Another advantage is that the name and address are together as a separate paragraph at the head of the personal and professional record thus segregating the directory feature from the biographical mention.

WHO'S WHO IN FINANCE AND BANKING exemplifies the writer's plan of adapting the "Who's Who" idea to special and congruous groups of professional contemporaries, doing similar work, impelled by like ideals and identical experiences. Its endeavor has been to produce a correct and valuable compendium of personal and professional information concerning as many financiers, bankers, capitalists and men of mark in financial control of the great industries and activities of the United States and Canada as could be covered from available data.

No financial consideration has entered into the compilation of the biographical portion of this book. Not one of the personal and professional records in the volume has been or could have been paid for. It is a book of reference, and contains a larger number of biographies of contemporary American and Canadian banking and financial men than any other volume ever printed.

The selection of names for the volume has been beset with many difficulties. There are many who should be in the book who are omitted because they failed to send data as requested, though every request has emphasized the fact that no financial obligation for subscription or otherwise was involved in the use of such data.

But even with these omissions, the book is issued with confidence in its acceptance as a valuable and unique compendium of personal information in the financial field.

After some deliberation it has been decided to separate the Canadian from the United States portion of the book. The book follows the alphabetical arrangement by individuals, but at the end of this alphabetical arrangement there is a carefully compiled Geographical Index by States, Provinces and Post Offices, facilitating the search for names in particular localities.

Constructive criticism and suggestions as to omitted names or other ways in which successive issues may be improved will be thankfully received. Future editions will all endeavor to increase the number and enlarge the usefulness of the book.

JOHN WILLIAM LEONARD.

FLINT, Charles Ranlett, 25 Broad St.; res. 270 Park Ave., New York, N. Y.

Merchant, financier; b. Thomaston, Maine, Jan. 24, 1850; s. Benjamin and Sarah (Tolbey) Flint; descendant of Thomas Flint (Welch) who came to America and settled at Salem, Mass., 1642; ed. public schools of Thomaston, Me., and Brooklyn, N. Y., the Warren Johnson School, Topsham, Me., and Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, graduating 1868 (pres. of class and of alumni); m. Nov. 21, 1883, Emma Kate Simmons, of Troy, N. Y. His father and uncle (Isaac Flint Chapman) founded in 1837 the firm of Chapman & Flint, shipbuilders, at Thomaston at Bath, Maine, and owners of the second largest fleet of merchant ships under the American. Following graduation was dock clerk, 1868-69; clerk for William R. Grace, New York partner of Brice, Grace & Co., of Peru, 1869-71; organized firm of Gilchrist, Flint & Co., ship chandlers, but in 1872, with W. R. and M. P. Grace established the shipping firm of W. R. Grace & Co., of New York, of which he owned a one-fourth interest, and in 1876 took a principal part in organizing and managing the firm of Grace Brothers & Co., of Peru. Became consul of Chile, when he returned to New York, but when Chile declared war against Peru in 1879, cabled his resignation of that office, because his firm was financial agents of the Peruvian Government, and greatly assisted Peru in the war by purchase and delivery of munitions, a cartridge factory, Ericsson torpedo guns and torpedo boats. That war greatly contracted the business of W. R. Grace & Co., and he became pres. of the U. S. Electric Light Co. in 1880, securing the agreement of all except Thomas A. Edison, to the formation of a world consolidation of electric light and power interests; attempt by Mr. Edison to obtain a permanent injunction to prevent his company from manufacturing incandescent lamps was defeated, after a long legal battle. Visited the Amason in 1884 and arranged for export of large quantities of rubber during succeeding years. In 1886 entered firm of Flint & Co., successors of Chapman & Flint, composed of his father and brother, Wallace Benjamin Flint; became consul of Nicaragua and later consul-general of Costa Rica. Because of intimate knowledge of political and business conditions in Central and South America rendered important service as a U. S. delegate to the first International-American Conference of 1889-90, in which he was U. S. representative on the Committee of Banking, and as a member of the committee on customs regulation inaugurated the idea of a Bureau of American Republics which after conference with Secretary James G. he embodied in a report which was unanimously adopted by the Conference. His work in the Conference was strongly commended by its president-secretary, James G. Blaine. During the Revolution in Brazil, 1893, acted for President Plexto in purchase of vessels and munitions of war, purchasing, converting, arming and equipping six high speed vessels within 25 days, and thus aiding the Republic to prevent the restoration of the monarchy. During Chino-Japanese War purchased the cruiser "Esmeralda" from Chile and delivered her to Japan. While U. S. was preparing for war with Spain, initiated preparation for purchase of every available war vessel in the world to keep Spain from getting them. Through his agents gave Secretary of the Navy John D. Long the first information of the departure of the Spanish fleet from Cape Verde, and later the sailing of the Colliers to the Spanish rendezvous off the Venezuelan coast. During the Russo-Japanese War was given the DeRothschild credits for account of the Russian Government, totalling 150,000,000, purchasing for Russia all available ordnance in the U. S., including eight submarines and ten torpedo boats. Visited Petrograd, was received by the Czar and Grand Duke Alexis, and co-operated with Russian Naval War and Finance Departments, and later accompanied Admiral Brusiloff on a secret mission for the Russian Government to Turkey and Greece. Upon the overthrow of the Russian autocracy in 1917 organized a movement to secure American recognition of the Provisional Government of Lvoff and Milinikoff, secured approval of the State Department for the calling of a mass meeting in the Manhattan Opera House, and with the advice of Mr. Joseph H. Choate took measures which resulted in the organization of the "Committee for the Encouragement of Democratic Government in Russia," which included Messrs. Choate, Hughes, Parker, Gompers, Schiff, the presidents of American universities, and ex-ambassadors and ministers, Mr. Flint being elected chairman on motion of Mr. Choate. He spent four days in the lobby of the United States Senate, after which the governments of twenty-eight countries cabled encouragement to the First Provisional Government of Russia, and, in response to a telegram of the committee, Mr. Wilson appointed a commission to go to Russia with Elihu Root as chairman; but German gold, backing up Lenin and Trotsky overthrew the Petrograd Government. In 1899 with his brother, Wallace B. Flint and George S. Dearborn, organined the corporation of Flint, Dearborn & Co., thus uniting the formerly competitive lines of sailing ships to California, which had previously been run by Flint & Co. and Dearborn & Co. Later, with Captain Burnham, past captain of Flint & Co., incorporated the American & Hawaiian Steamship Co. In 1894 Flint & Co. assigned its merchandise business to the corporation of Flint, Eddy & Co., which included the firm of Coombs, Crosby and Eddy. Later securing all outstanding shares of Flint & Co., Inc., reorganized it as an international concern with offices at 50 Pall Mall, London and 25 Broad St., New York, under executive control of a committee of three composed of Mr. Flint, J. Henry Smith, of Detroit, and William A. Read, native of New Zealand. Aside from his activities in merchandising and in behalf of governments has been so prominent in the consolidation of industries that he is known as "The Father of Trusts."

ACHESON, (Dr.) Edward Goodrich, 35 West 42d St.; res. 417 Park Ave., New York, N. Y.

Electrical Research Engineer, Chemist, Inventor, Scientist, Financier; b. Washington, Pa., March 9, 1856; s. William (iron manufacturer) and Sarah Diana (Ruple) Acheson; grandson of David Acheson, who came from Glassdrummond, County Armagh, Ireland, 1789, settled in Washington, Pa. (became prominent in business there and three terms member General Assembly of Pa., with descendants prominent as lawyers and judges, one a Congressman, etc.); ed. in Bellefonte (Pa.) Academy until 1872, when was taken from school to fill position in father's blast furnace; hon. Sc D., University of Pittsburgh 1909; m. Brooklyn, N. Y., 1884, Margaret Maher. Soon after father's death in 1873, became chairman with a surveying party following with varied occupations, devoting leisure to mechanical research and invention; employed, successively, as railway ticket clerk, engineer, bookkeeper and iron miner until 1880, then went to New York; became assistant draftsman in laboratories of Thomas A. Edison at Menlo Park, 1880; sent as first assistant engineer of Edison interests at Electrical Exposition, Paris, 1881, and after its close remained in Paris with Edison Co. and later was for a time in Italy with Italian Co. operating Edison patents; returned to Paris, 1883, to conduct experiments on his own account on problem of direct conversion of heat into electric energy, these experiments and illness exhausted his savings; on return to New York sought a salaried position and became superintendent Consolidated Lamp Co., Brooklyn, 1884-85; invented anti-induction telephone wire and sold it to George Westinghouse 1886; electrical engineer Standard Underground Cable Co., Pittsburgh, 1886-89. Having in leisure hours became interested in electrical and chemical research for production of abrasives superior to any then in use, decided to devote entire time to experiments, and in March, 1891, having opportunity to use a large electric current began a series of experimental tests which led to the production of a new and previously unknown body so hard and abrasive that it would cut diamonds, which he named Carborundum, patented in February, 1893. Organized Carbundum Co., beginning with small plant at Monongahela City, which was soon outgrown, and in 1895 the great Carborundum plant at Niagara Falls, N. Y., was built, which now has largest electrical furnace in the world, with annual production of more than 20,000,000 lbs. of carborundum. With the excessively high temperature made available at Niagara plants, Dr. Acheson had the means for further experiment with the result that in 1897 he developed a new process for producing graphite far superior in purity and quality to any of the graphites found in their natural State; organized in 1899 Acheson Graphite Co., later reorganized into International Graphite Co., of Niagara Falls, (production now exceeding 50,000,000 lbs. annually), used in the manufacture of electrodes, in the filling of dry batteries, as a paint pigment for metals, as a material for use in electrotyping, etc.; also inventor of Siloxican, and Egyptianized Clay; afterward made independent discovery of a method for producing, by another method, a practically chemically pure graphite (guaranteed 99 per cent. pure) a soft, non-coalescing graphite unequalled which became known as Deflocculated Acheson Graphite from initals of which the suffix Dag was coined by Dr. Acheson as name for the products Gredag, Oildag, and Aquadag for the lubricants made from it with grease, oil or water as the respective vehicles, resulting in a very large increase in lubricating efficiency. The products are made in a special plant at Port Huron, Mich., by a special Corp., the Acheson Oildag Co. Awarded the Perkin Gold Medal 1910. The Rumford Medal 1907, and has twice received John Scott Medal of Franklin Institute. His products received Grand Prizes at Paris Exposition, 1900 and at Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904. Member Am. Inst. Elec. Engineers, Franklin Inst., Soc. of Arts (London), Am. DAVISON, Henry Pomeroy, 23 Wall St., New York; res. Locust Valley, Long Island, N. Y.

Banker; b. Troy, Pa., June 13, 1867; s. of George B. and Henrietta (Pomeroy) Davison; grad. Greylock Institute, South Williamstown, Mass., 1886 (L.L. D. Univ. of Pennsylvania, 1913); m. Bridgeport, Conn. 1898, Kate Trubee; children: Henry Pomeroy, Jr., Trubee (both served in aviation service in France); taught school at age of 16, working on farm in vacations, and after graduation in 1886 went into a small bank at Troy, Pa., owned by an uncle, but wishing to learn the business in a larger institution, he secured an opening as runner in the Pequonnock National Bank, Bridgeport, Conn., in 1888, where he made good and soon became teller; determined to secure a New York career, he applied for a position as teller in the Astor Place Bank, about to be started in New York in 1891, and was nominated for the position by the cashier, but because he was an out-of-town man the directors demurred and he had to take a minor place, although he soon reached the paying teller's cage; in 1894 went to the Liberty National Bank, on its organization, as assistant cashier, becoming cashier 1895; vice-pres. 1898, and pres. 1899-1902; vice-pres. First National Bank of New York, 1902-07; took an active and influential part in the conferences of bankers in J. Pierpont Morgan's library in which the means to stem the tide of disaster during the panic of 1907 were discussed and formulated and from this, and from the advisory part taken by Mr. Davison in the visit of the Monetary Commission headed by Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island (during which he spent a week-end at the Morgan suburban home near London), Mr. Morgan gained an impression of his abilities which led him to offer him a partnership in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., which began Jan. 1, 1908, and still continues. Took the most active part in the organization of the Bankers' Trust Co.; chief mgr. of the consolidation of the Morton Trust Co. and Fifth Avenue Trust Co. with the Guaranty Trust Co. under the name of the latter, for which consolidation he had prepared by a masterly campaign for control of Guaranty Trust stock; bore active part in the work of the Morgan firm in the floating of loans and purchase of munitions and supplies which the Allied Powers of the Entente group had confided, for the greater part, in the hands of the Morgan firm; at the same time he was a dir. and chmn. of the Executive Committee of the Liberty National Bank and Bankers' Trust Co., dir. of the First Security Co. and the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad, and a trus. of the Stevens Institute of Technology. He was a dir. and member of the Endowment Committee of the American National Red Cross. In this connection President Wilson and others urged him to become the executive head of the War Council of that great organization, his acceptance of which resulted in making it the most effective instrument ever organized by any nation for comfort and relief work in war, his organizing genius and ability bringing money, means and efficiency to their highest power; as chmn. of the War Council the President, in accordance with the plan to give the Red Cross military standing by commissions to its principal officers, commissioned Mr. Davison a major general, assigned to command the Red Cross war work. On return of peace he resumed his banking connections, and is now member of the firms of J. P. Morgan & Co., New York; Morgan, Harjes & Co., Paris; Drexel & Co., Philadelphia, and Morgan, Greenfelt & Co., London; dir. and chmn. of Executive Committee of the Bankers' Trust Co., dir.
